WHAT SHALL WE DRINK?
every cocktail on the menu, yours to choose

ATLAS was named for the Titan who holds the sky, an act of strength defined by endurance.

Above him sit the Pleiades, a small gathering of stars that has guided people for generations. Long before maps or calendars, they marked when to plant and when to harvest, when to set out and when to return, when to gather and when to begin again. They formed a shared rhythm, recognised across cultures and carried through memory rather than instruction.

In Greek myth, the Pleiades are the seven daughters of ATLAS. Each is distinct in nature, yet bound beneath the same sky. Their stories are cyclical rather than fixed, appearing, fading, and returning in new light.

ALCYONE

Associated with calm seas and clear passage. She brings the halcyon days, when waters rest and movement settles into quiet assurance. In her presence, turbulence stills and safe crossing becomes possible.

Rose Compass no alcohol

n/a citrus spirit, melon, honeydew, cherry, rose black tea juicy & floral, soft tannin, steady as a star on the horizon

16      no alcohol      |      22      with gin

Timekeeper no alcohol

strawberries, cherry tomato, basil, vanilla
fresh & savoury, lively carbonation

22      no alcohol      |      28      with gin

WHAT FADES RETURNS.
WHAT RETURNS GATHERS US.
WHAT IS GATHERED IS SHARED.
AND WHAT ENDURES REMAINS ABOVE,
HOLDING TIME AS WE COME TOGETHER AGAIN.

Cartographer no alcohol

banana, caramel, malted milk, clarified milk punch

silky smooth with ripe sweetness, guiding toward still waters

18      no alcohol      |      26      with cognac

Shackleton no alcohol

n/a spiced spirit, floral tisane, hazelnut, salted elderflower tonic

nutty, with notes of warm baking spice

22      no alcohol      |      28      with calvados

MEROPE

A quiet glow that fades not from weakness, but from devotion. She lingers at the edge of sight, softening rather than vanishing, her light made tender by what she chooses to hold close.

Afterglow 7% champagne, pisco, white verjus, muscat white tea, golden raisins, soda tart & vinous, a perfume that lingers just past the edge

28

Golden Hour 9%

oloroso & pedro ximénez sherry, roasted butternut squash, egg yolk creamy yet dry, caramel without display

24

STEROPE

The flash of light. She cuts through stillness with immediacy and force, arriving before you've registered movement. Clarity without hesitation, brightness that demands nothing but attention.

Electric Vice 15%

rum blend, spanish horchata, pineapple, prickly pear
a strike of vivid fruit over nuttiness, impossible to look away from

28

The Flare 18%

shochu, citronelle, clarified pineapple juice, saffron cream creamy tropical sweetness with sharp citrus

28

MAIA

The eldest. She carries what others pass through: continuity, assurance, the weight of order. Shaped by time, she holds the structure steady, a point of return when nothing else remains fixed.

Crimson Keystone 18%

single malt scotch, amaretto, plum, cherry wine ripe orchard fruit & almond, steady as bedrock

30

Wingbeat 19%

gin, tzatziki cordial, dill, cucumber, mint, yoghurt
cool & clean, like a messenger riding the wind

26

TAYGETE

Protector of wild terrain. She moves toward distance and elevation, drawn to what resists capture or enclosure. At home in open air and high places, she refuses to be held, tamed, or made domestic.

The Maquis 19%

tequila, mezcal, lime, green chilli, parsley, rosemary, thyme herbaceous with a bite, here then gone

24

The Doe 21%

vodka, peach, passito, jasmine delicate stone fruit, graceful & luminous

28

ELECTRA

She steps back from the world, choosing altitude over immersion. From above, she observes rather than enters, her light softened by distance and air. Present but never quite held, seen but not reached.

Amber Crown 22%

rum blend, dry vermouth, orange liqueur, baba syrup
indulgent, a light dessert saturated with spirit

28

Apple Aria 22%

mezcal, bitter bianco, elderflower, clarified green apple soda lightly smoky & crisp, a green clarity through haze

28

CELAENO

The dark one, the hidden one. She remains partially obscured, operating in thresholds where depth is sensed before understood.

What she conceals is not absent, only withheld on her terms.

Camera Obscura 24%

rye & scotch whisky, coffee, dry vermouth, spices, aged dark tea
dry & richly spiced, where two traditions meet in quiet tension

28

The Illusionist 30%

duck fat washed rye whiskey & cognac, oloroso, orange liqueur, champagne bold yet composed, savoury & rounded

COCKTAILS FOR THE AGES

From the Old Fashioned, a 19th-century mark of sophistication, to the French 75, lifted in celebration at the end of World War I, to the 20th Century, born in the age of rail between metropolises, and the Gimlet, once a naval staple. These cocktails carry the stories of their time. Like the stars, they move in cycles, returning again and again.

Gimlette 19%

french gin, pineau des charentes, triple citrus cordial, lime refreshingly tart with a dash of saline

26

ATLAS French 75 15.5%

ATLAS' very own gin, peach, champagne bright, elegant & vivacious, a stone fruit twist on the classic

28

20th Century Limited 20%

old-world richness, softly bitter & composed

26

Howe's Old Fashioned 23%

bourbon & scotch whisky, ratafia, coteaux champenois, italian bitter liqueur

bold, warming & quietly brooding

28

MARTINI CLASSICS

As Hemingway once mused, “I’ve never tasted anything so cool and clean... They make me feel civilised.” The Martini remains an enduring icon. A perfect balance of gin (or vodka), vermouth, and a whisper of bitters. Its simplicity is its strength, its elegance undeniable.

ATLAS Martini 31.2%

ATLAS’ very own gin, ambrato vermouth, orange bitters, champagne vinegar

strong, cold, floral, with a little lick of the wild

28

Orange Blossom Martini 28%

ATLAS’ collaboration orange gin, blanc vermouth, chocolate bitters

herbaceous with hints of chocolate & orange

28

ATLAS Espresso Martini 22.8%

NEGRONI RITUAL

Born in Florence in the early twentieth century, the Negroni stands as a resolute classic. Gin, vermouth, and italian bitter liqueur in equal measure, first poured in 1919 as a deliberate evolution of the Americano. As Orson Welles once observed, “The bitters are excellent for your liver; the gin is bad for you. They balance each other.”

ATLAS Negroni 17%

london dry gin, italian bitter liqueur, sweet vermouth, frankincense shaped by historic incense trade routes, resinous & aromatic

26

By the Ounce 20%

indonesian gin, italian bitter liqueur, sweet vermouth, nutmeg
warm & gently spiced, reflecting its place in early southeast asian trade

28

New Amsterdam 23%
